

ABSTRACT

A power management apparatus includes a sensor and a display. For one embodiment, power to the display may be decreased when the sensor detects absence of a user, and the power to the display may be increased when the sensor detects presence of the user.